

Acknowledgments

Venture Philanthropy Partners and Community Wealth Ventures are grateful to many for their contributions, guidance, insights, and critiques. We thank each of those who contributed in some way, including the funders and nonprofit leaders who participated in the six dialogues; the advisory board, whose expertise and guidance were critical to this publication overall; the experts and thought leaders who provided valuable critiques and commentary for the essay; and the CWV and VPP staffs who worked behind the scenes to make this all possible.

We appreciate and acknowledge the time and thoughtful guidance that these individuals provided. This publication is markedly better because of their advice and involvement.

Advisory Board: The advisors helped guide this effort from inception, providing advice on the organizations to include, critiquing the content, and advising the process at key points along the way.

Christine W. Letts, Rita S. Hauser Lecturer in the Practice of Philanthropy and Nonprofit Leadership and Associate Director of the Hauser Center for Nonprofit Organizations, John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University;

Catherine Muther, Founder and President, Three Guineas Fund;

Les Silverman, Director, McKinsey & Company;

Edward Skloot, Executive Director, Surdna Foundation;

Donna Stark, Director of Leadership Development, Annie E. Casey Foundation; and

Patty Stonesifer, Co-chair & President, Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

Dialogue Participants: The philanthropists and nonprofit leaders gave significant time to meet, discuss their experiences, and work with us to cull down the transcripts to produce the six dialogues in the report. We especially acknowledge and thank them for their openness and invaluable candor. In addition to the philanthropists and nonprofit leaders noted below, we extend our appreciation to others in these organizations who helped in the editing and condensing of the transcripts.

Michael Bailin, President, and Nancy Roob, Vice President, of the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation; and Geoffrey Canada, President/CEO, Harlem Children's Zone;

Fred Bollerer, Partner, and Mario Morino, Chairman, of Venture Philanthropy Partners; Darin McKeever, Co-Founder and Executive Director, and Vincent Pan, Co-Founder and former Executive Director, of Heads Up;

Essay Reviewers: In addition to valuable input from the Advisory Board and dialogue participants, we were also fortunate to be able to involve other thought leaders who provided a strong critique and remarkable input that helped shape and refine the lead essay. As we note in the essay, while these reviewers did not always agree with us, and bear no responsibility for what follows, they were generous with their opinions and no doubt made this report more focused, balanced, and fair than it would otherwise have been.

CWV and VPP Team: The production and dissemination of the report was a joint effort of the Community Wealth Ventures and Venture Philanthropy Partners teams. Alfred Wise and Bill Shore directed the dialogue development, which represented the lion’s share of the effort over the past year. The team also supported Mario Morino and Bill Shore’s work to develop the essay, and handled all of the behind-the-scenes production, distribution, website development, and communications. Their effort and commitment to producing a quality publication and ensuring it reaches its intended audiences are most appreciated.
